

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Leg 174A benefited greatly from the tireless support of the captain, crew, and technicians aboard the JOIDES Resolution. We are particularly grateful to Gene Pollard, the operations manager, for his innovative expertise, always delivered with good humor and a sense of helpfulness. We would not have succeeded to the degree we did (and perhaps not at all) without his contributions. The ODP technical staff of the Resolution was outstanding in all respects. Their competence, dedication, good humor, and genuine concern for excellence in every aspect of the expedition played a central role in its success. We required an addition to the drilling schedule during the leg because of operational difficulties on the shelf; we are grateful for the help and encouragement of Tim Francis in enabling us to make this change while at sea. We benefited from a month of unbroken excellent weather and were fortunate that the only hazard encountered by the organic geochemistry lab was finding ways of keeping George Claypool busy. Finally, the hard work and competence of the ODP editorial staff and illustrators have been instrumental in the publication of this volume. Thanks to all.
